PRODUCE HARVEST CALENDAR FOR NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

California agriculture is unique in its character and contribution to the state and the nation by its unparalleled diversity and bounty. California has been blessed with almost perfect weather and rich soil leading to the development of an incredible diversity of produce and livestock. Northern California leads the nation in the production of more than 30 commodities, including peaches, eggs, walnuts, strawberries and artichokes. We lead the nation in selling this agricultural wealth through the state's local farmers' markets. Farmers participate in more than 350 markets statewide, many of them year-round. And community participation is growing! Every time you eat a piece of just-picked, locally grown fruit, you're helping to preserve our rich and vital farmland. Every bag of produce you buy at a local farmers' market helps to preserve that market's future. Remember to buy fresh and buy local for the best quality available, and support your local farmers.
